HEALTH CHECK WOE FOR PAH

By BEN WILKINSON
Chief Reporter
wilkinsonb@hertssexnews.co.uk

STANDARDS of hygiene and cleanliness at Harlow's Princess Alexandra Hospital have been among the worst in the country – by its own admission.

Details of self-assessments carried out by NHS trusts and published this week by the Healthcare Commission show PAH was one of just eight hospital trusts which failed to meet two out of three key hygiene targets last year.

The benchmark was also missed by 13 primary care trusts.

The data, based on PAH managers' own analysis of performance in the year ending March 31 this year, reveals the hospital failed to:

● have systems in place to ensure the risk of hospital-acquired infection to patients was reduced, and

● provide services in "environments which promoted effective care and optimised health outcomes with cleanliness levels that met the national specification".

It means the PAH Trust – which also runs St Margaret's Hospital in Epping – has just 10 months to turn around its performance before the Healthcare Commission is superseded by a new super regulator which will have the power to shut dirty wards and intervene directly in the running of services.

This week PAH chief executive Chris Pocklington said the hospital had already taken massive strides forward in recent months and the poor score for the year was because of failures prior to September 2007.

BT police to step up patrols after eighth rail death

TRANSPORT police are stepping up patrols at Harlow's two train stations following an eighth rail death in just four months.

Gary Planck (43), from Harlow, was struck by the Stansted to Liverpool Street service on the line near Harlow Town station on Thursday night.

The incident, which is not being treated as suspicious, adds to the growing list of fatalities which have occurred on the line between Harlow Town and Harlow Mill stations since February. Following the last death Harlow MP Bill Rammell called on rail chiefs to take action to try to prevent further tragedies. It is understood he will be meeting with rail authority representatives soon to discuss progress.

But speaking this week a British Transport Police spokesman said it was continuing to work with partner agencies including Harlow Council, Network Rail and National Express East Anglia to discuss whether further measures can be taken and said plans were in hand to increase BTP visits to the stations.

"The rail system is an open network and stations are of necessity easily accessible so it is not

Hospital fails to hit two of three targets cases of the MRSA superbug during the 12-month period there were none in the final three. The number of clostridium difficile cases at the hospital was also relatively low.

"We took an honest and open approach in scoring ourselves on these important health check standards," said Mr Pocklington. "We had to indicate non-compliance for the MRSA category last year because we had a spike in the number of cases earlier in the year and took action then to ensure we saw a dramatic reduction."

"I want our local population to know about the huge improvements in infection control we have made in their hospital and to be confident about their care should they need to join us as patients."

Court battle looming over homes blueprint

By BEN WILKINSON, Chief Reporter
wilkinsonb@hertsexnews.co.uk

A PLANNING blueprint which lays the foundations for thousands of new homes in Harlow and huge development on countryside to the north could be stopped in its tracks.

The Star understands that leading county councillors in neighbouring Hertfordshire are actively considering mounting a legal challenge to the East of England Plan which was given the go-ahead by the Government last month.

Hertfordshire County Council is currently consulting lawyers over its options and, if it goes ahead with court action, expects to get the backing of 10 of its district councils.

The EoEP would have to be challenged on specific grounds such as the standard of consultation processes or alleged failures to comply with the European Union's habitats directive which exists to protect environments populated by threatened species.

The deadline for any attempt to force a judicial review runs out on Monday.

Today (Thursday) campaigners from pressure group Stop Harlow North were due to present a petition to the leaders of both Hertfordshire County Council and East Herts District Council encouraging them to take the potentially costly gamble.

If the challenge fails, the councils could face legal bills running into hundreds of thousands of pounds. But Stop Harlow North secretary Nigel Clark said the fact the final version of the Plan goes against the advice of the independent planning inspector, appointed by the Government to review it in 200, means there is a strong legal case.

"For such a weight of evidence against the proposals, and the conclusions of the independent planning inspector, to have been ignored by the final Plan is not only morally unacceptable but indicates that due process cannot have been followed," he said.

A Hertfordshire County Council spokeswoman told the Star the authority was still reviewing its options while a spokesman for East Herts Council confirmed officials had been in discussions with County Hall about possible action.

Watchdog rejects complaint over talk show host's tirade

A RETIRED solicitor who was subjected to an on-air barrage of abuse by radio show host James Whale has had his complaint about the presenter thrown out by regulators.

Mr Bennett, of Chippingfield, Old Harlow, has been notified by the Office of Communications that his complaint of unfair treatment by TalkSPORT has been rejected.

The decision comes after a five-month investigation into the presenter's conduct during an interview last December in which Mr Bennett defended his plans to bring a private prosecution against the parents of missing girl Madeleine McCann.

TONY BENNETT

While on air Mr Whale, who was subsequently sacked from the station for political bias during the London mayoral elections, took exception to Mr Bennett's plans and called him an idiot who was "despicable and disgusting" and should "go away and grow up".

Mr Bennett later described Mr Whale's reaction as intimidating but OFCOM has now ruled that the interview and introduction were acceptable because they were in keeping with the established nature of the programme, adding that regular listeners would have expected the interview to be dominated by the presenior's views.

This week Mr Bennett told the Star he was very unhappy with the decision and hoped to be able to appeal.

"I made a complaint to OFCOM because I expected at least a degree of fairness in the interview," he said. "I did not bargain for constant interruption, especially when I was answering James Whale's questions, not ducking them."

"I note that since my complaint, James Whale has been sacked by TalkSPORT for the very thing I accused him of - unfairness."

More patrols after another rail death

possible to prevent someone who is intent on taking their life from doing so," he said. "However, with our partners, we are taking any steps we can to reduce the occurrence of such tragic events."

"A number of measures have already been taken including specialist training for rail staff by the Samaritans and ensuring staff are more visible to the public. BTP officers will also be making extra visits to both stations as well as linking in with Essex Police's Safer Neighbourhood Team for the Harlow area."

Harlow Council leader Andrew Johnson confirmed representatives had held a meeting with BTP and other authorities last week to discuss if anything more can be done.

"Suicide and unexpected death are sensitive and difficult issues for all involved but a multi-service approach to managing the problem will ensure that agencies can work together to use their resources to manage this difficult and complex situation," he said.

Health crusade is a breath of fresh air

HARLOW Alzheimer's Society is planning a day of action tomorrow (Friday) to highlight what it believes is the "unfairness" in the way people with dementia are charged for their care.

Charity activists, carers and sufferers will meet local MP Bill Rammell to seek his support for their campaign for change. The move coincides with the launch of a Government consultation on the future of social care.

Spokeswoman Marion Howell explained: "People with dementia are among those who require a lot of care over a long period of time yet they are left to pay huge prices for care which is often inadequate. Hundreds of people in Harlow are being victimised.

"The Government is encouraging everyone to remain in their own homes for as long as possible yet people are being financially penalised because they are ill."

A MEMORIAL service for people affected by the death of a baby takes place at Harlow's Princess Alexandra Hospital on Sunday.

Organised by the town's Maternity Bereavement Group, the service is open to anyone who has lost a baby during pregnancy or shortly after birth. The service will be followed by an opportunity for bereaved families to meet others who have gone through a similar experience.

The service takes place in the Alexandra Day Unit, starting at 3pm. For more information call Andrea Brewis on (01279) 827109 or Nicola McCormack (01279) 723226.

AN eclectic range of bands are promised at a music festival to raise money for Harlow's Rock School project.

Pearfest, at Doorstep Green in the village of Epping Green, will feature local young talent as well as more established acts. The entertainment runs from 1pm-10pm.

For more information, visit www.myspace.com/pearfest2008

MORE than 20 gardens and an allotment site will be open to the public next weekend to raise money for St Clare Hospice.

The gardens will be open from 11am-5pm with programmes allowing access to all of them costing £3. For more information call Ann Gould on (01279) 830866.

A FUN event for young children takes place at The Museum of Harlow, in Muskhams Road, on Saturday when a selection of child size replica costumes will be available to try on.

This will be followed on Wednesday with sessions for under-5s between 12.45-1.30pm and 1.45-2.30pm.
Call (01279) 454959 to book a place

BLOOD donor sessions takes place at Harlow's Latton Bush Centre, Southern Way, on Thursday from 2-4pm and 5-7.45pm.

A MAJOR drive to improve people's breathing is being launched in Harlow this weekend at the start of a national awareness week.

Members of the Harlow and Epping Forest Breathe Easy Group will be promoting the British Lung Foundation's new Airway Code to shoppers visiting the Water Gardens on Saturday.

They will be stationed in the Asda supermarket from where they will provide information for people with lung problems as well as offer advice on a 10-point plan for people who have not.

Based on medical and scientific evidence, the code includes the most important things to do and to avoid in order to preserve lung capacity and prevent permanent damage. This includes keeping active, eating healthily, avoiding smoking, protecting against dust and fumes and ventilating rooms.

More detailed information and advice is available on each of the 10 points.

Christine Carr, secretary of the Harlow and Epping Forest Breathe Easy Group, said: "Healthy lungs make you feel younger, live longer, run faster, sing louder and kiss better. "Big breaths give our bodies the oxygen they need. If we protect our lungs by following the Airway Code we can make the most of the lung capacity we have and help prevent respiratory illness in the future."

For more information on local support available to sufferers of lung conditions, call (01992) 578694.

A STITCH in time will bring comfort for sick and terminally ill children after a group of Harlow patchwork enthusiasts created eight quilts for an international charity.

Members of the Sunshine Quilters, who meet regularly in the homes of members, handed over the results of their six months of hard work to a representative of Project Linus on Tuesday.

The charity, which originated in the USA in 1995, has distributed more than two million comfort blankets to hospitals across the world. Now the work of the Harlow quilters, which include detailed embroidery with themes like farmyard animals, will be added to the effort.

Sunshine Quilters member Sylvia Wells, said: "There are 11 of us in the group and we have all played our part. We have really enjoyed making the quilts and it's so rewarding to know that they will be put to such good use."

PEOPLE who devote their lives to caring for family members were able to enjoy a well-earned break during National Carers Week. The charity Caring For Harlow Carers ran a series of events throughout the week including a canal boat trip, a visit to Royal Horticultural Society gardens and a pub lunch. In addition it set up a stall in Broad Walk to provide the estimated 7,000 carers in Harlow with detailed information about support available.

Caring For Harlow Carers runs two weekly respite clubs for cared-for people which enables their carers to have some time off. It also runs a special club for young carers and provides information, support and advocacy when needed.

Police crackdown strikes back at conmen

A CRACKDOWN on burglaries has begun, to protect Harlow's vulnerable citizens this summer.

Harlow Neighbourhood Watch and the Neighbourhood Police Team launched National Neighbourhood Watch Week last Wednesday to focus on cutting distraction burglaries in the town.

Both teams will give advice on not responding to cold callers, help set up 'no cold calling zones' and deliver reassurance and training.

Chief Inspector Mike Martin said: "We have relatively few of these crimes in Harlow; however, due to the huge impact these crimes have on victims, even one is too many."

A Neighbourhood Watch stand will be at the Harvey Centre on Saturday from 11am-2pm.

Town tax offices in the firing line

TRADES unions have warned the closure of Harlow's two tax offices will put dozens of jobs at risk and increase the danger of tax evasion and fraud.

The offices at Terminus House, in Terminus Street, and Beaufort House, in Crown Gate, are among 95 in the country which face the axe in a major re-organisation by HM Revenue & Customs.

Arising out of the integration of the old Inland Revenue and Customs & Excise departments in 2005, the proposed closures are part of a major cost-cutting drive.

Under the plans, the functions of the two Harlow offices would be transferred to Bishop's Stortford. However, Harlow would retain a small inquiry desk to deal with queries.

By BEN WILKINSON, Chief Reporter
wilkinsonb@hertssexnews.co.uk

HMRC says it hopes to avoid compulsory redundancies but union officials believe this will be impossible.

Carol Gerrard, local branch chairwoman for the Public and Commercial Services Union, said: "Harlow has a reputation for being extremely efficient and effective in collecting taxes."

"The plan is for staff to be transferred to Bishop's Stortford but this just won't be an option for many of them and, as such, their skills and experience will be lost."

"The majority of our members in Harlow are female and work part-time and they, along with other PCS members in Harlow, will find it extremely difficult to relocate or find another office. They face a very uncertain future."

Mrs Gerrard added that the proposal to retain Harlow's inquiry desk was misleading: "Any plans for a public counter surely cannot be viable without an office to support it."

"The inquiry centre at Harlow currently receives over 13,000 visits by members of the public per year – for example, self-employed trades people, pensioners and tax credit claimants seeking advice."

Harlow MP Bill Rammell said the move was intended to divert money towards front-line services rather than back office operations, but said he had written to the minister responsible to raise the union's concerns.

Harlow Conservative prospective Parliamentary candidate Robert Halfon warned the move would cause "major inconvenience" to residents and local businesses, especially with Post Offices also threatened by Government cuts.

PAH maternity staff trained to help in times of tragedy

MATERNITY staff at Harlow's Princess Alexandra Hospital are among the first in the region to be trained to support families who have lost a baby.

Two midwives from PAH's maternity unit will be teaching staff about how to help those affected by a late miscarriage or stillbirth.

The information is delivered through a study day held in partnership with the award-winning Maternity Bereavement Group and includes representatives from a variety of organisations and groups as well as bereaved parents, who will speak at the events to give staff an insight into the emotions families experience.

Maternity ward manager Andrea Brewis, a member of the bereavement group, said: "We are proud that we can offer this specialist training within our hospital."

"The structure of the study days means that staff are able to follow the chronological journey with parents and develop a fuller understanding of the bereavement process. They are then able to work more closely with the families and that, of course, equates to better standards of care for the women who are going through a painful and distressing time."

● ANYBODY affected by the death of a baby is welcome to attend the annual memorial service on Sunday at 3pm in the hospital's Alexandra Day Unit.

Trio rob salesman sitting in car

A SALESMAN was robbed by a group of men as he sat in his car.

The vehicle was parked in The Gowers, Harlow, at 5.45pm on Thursday when the trio, thought to be in their mid 20s, opened the doors and demanded money from the victim.

At first he refused but was then threatened with a bottle. The robbers made off with an undisclosed amount of cash.

The first suspect is described as 1.78m

(5ft 10ins) tall with short, mousey brown hair. He was of slim build and wearing a grey jacket and light blue trousers.

The second was slightly shorter with dark brown hair and a slim build while the third was said to have very dark brown hair, of medium build and wearing a white sports jacket.

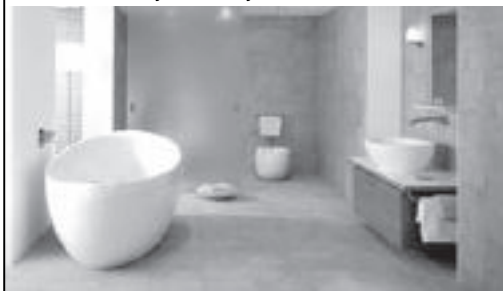

Anyone with information should call police on 0300 333 4444 or Crimestoppers on 0800 555 111.

My misplaced hope in Tories

SIR, I can't tell you how my heart sank as I read of the threat to weekly refuse collections. I naively thought that with the Conservatives gaining power in Harlow, such stupid ideas would be squashed. Apparently I was wrong.

So why are fortnightly collections and wheelie bins such a bad idea?

● Where do you keep the bins (I presume there will be at least three per household, one for refuse, one for non-recyclables and the other for recycling), given that few houses and no flats have a suitable area at the front of the property to store them?

● They will be vulnerable to vandalism as we all have open plan front gardens without fencing or hedges to offer some protection.

● Just imagine the stench from them after a fortnight of rotting waste left to bake in the summer sun and with the additional effects of the heat from global warming.

● Vermin will have a field day, with increases in rats, mice, foxes, cats and dogs all coming for a free meal. And don't kid yourselves that the lids these bins have will keep the vermin out.

● Since I cannot imagine our dustmen collecting the bins from the front of the houses, how are the disabled, elderly and sick supposed to get the bins to the kerbside for emptying?

● Cost. I have seen wheeled bins for sale in lay-bays around Essex at around £20 per bin. Assuming the council can purchase them that cheaply (which I doubt), how many hundreds of thousands of pounds of our council taxes will the council spend to equip all the properties in Harlow?

● Your article says that food waste would still be collected weekly, but for how long? As with many other councils around the country, food waste will become fortnightly too.

● Non-recyclable waste is invariably contaminated with food (for example, the dishes and shrink wrap your chops or mince come in) so they are a stink and vermin problem that needs weekly collection too.

Speaking for myself, I can't see why there is a need for change. The vast majority of my neighbours religiously separate out the recyclable items from the food waste and many (like me) have a compost bin for vegetable matter, etc, so why change? This scheme will only cost large sums of money for no appreciable gain.

If Harlow Council is serious about cutting waste collections, I suggest they purchase a compost bin for each household with a garden. You will be amazed how much of what we throw away could be composted. My bin was £10 from an Essex County Council offer and is most effective.

I call on all Harlow's residents to protest before it is too late.

College's spin

SIR, I must congratulate Jim Tanfield on his excellent article on Harlow College's results (Star, June 12). That he managed to gain an admission from deputy principal Pat Hay that the college 'spun' their statistics ("all organisations tried to show figures in the best possible light") while at the same time principal Colin Hindmarch contradicted this assertion is an excellent piece of journalism. Only one of them can be telling the truth - and I think we all know who it is in this instance.

Spurious targets

SIR, It was with increasing dismay that I read your front page story headlined 'Schools Shock' (Star, June 12), not because the basic facts in the story were incorrect but that the present Government has, in pursuit of its own spurious targets, labelled three of Harlow's secondary schools as "failing" when I know that this is far from the truth.

As chair of Stewards governors, I have in the last few weeks received from the Specialist Schools and Academies Trust two letters of congratulations, one for being one of the most improved specialist schools in the 2007 GCSE examinations and one for being one of the specialist schools with the highest value added score in the country. This is the fourth year running that we have received such recognition. Add this to last year's Ofsted inspection rating of 'good with outstanding features', and I think it is obvious that Stewards is far from being a "failing" school.

I should say that I brought all this to the attention of Bill Rammell last December. I have yet to receive an acknowledgement, much less a reply. You would think that having one of the smallest majorities in the country he might make more of an effort.

Unfortunately, one should point out that both major opposition parties have labelled the Government's target as "unambitious", so potentially there would be more failing schools in Harlow with another party in power.

I do not see how any of this uncertainty and turmoil will help hard-working teachers in our schools in the task of further raising achievement of our pupils. They do not need more interference, but they do need

Not that Pat Hay should be sizing up for his halo yet. He claimed that A-level results were worse than the previous year because more students sat the exams. Quite how this automatically leads to more students failing is not at all clear, but it is not the case that the number of students who sat these exams actually declined from 859 to 807? Can he please try to present this apparent contradiction in the best possible light?

However, nothing quite matches Colin Hindmarch's awesome record for contradicting himself, let alone his own deputy. Last year, he claimed that the costs of his staff 'restructuring' stood at £150,000 but later had to concede it was close to £1m. In the spring of 2007, he pledged that subject days would not be imposed without consulting staff, students and parents - but it was imposed without consultation and with disastrous consequences.

In Jim Tanfield's report, Colin Hindmarch said: "The Strategy was intended to be introduced gradually (but) the college was left with problems due to the unexpectedly high level of staff lost". And yet, only three months ago, in this very publication, Colin Hindmarch stated that, "We could get the restructuring in place much quicker because we were only expecting 40 to leave".

Mr Hindmarch claimed that he has been both honest and open at all times. Could he then please account for these contradictions and, better still, could he and the rest of the principalship please stand down so that the light of truth might emerge from their shadows?

Failing schools? I don't think so!
Jeff Tarling
Chair of Governors, Stewards School
Parnall Road, Harlow

SIR, Your coverage of the Government's National Challenge and its impact on Harlow schools was selective, misleading and presents a very false picture. Not once in the DCSF press release is there reference to failing schools yet your newspaper chooses to run with photos of three Harlow schools with the label "failing".

The reality is very different to the one you present. All Harlow schools have improved significantly in the last decade, with A-C pass rates at GCSE going from 28 per cent to 62.5 per cent. That has happened because of good teaching, huge extra investment and a determined focus on improving results.

But the Government rightly wants all schools to do even better, particularly on the A-C pass rate including English and maths, and has set a target that every school in the country should exceed a minimum performance threshold by 2011. Three Harlow schools, two of which will be open in 2011, currently do not achieve this.

Local GP value

SIR, There is a good deal of publicity at present about Government proposals to alter the way we will be able to use our GP surgeries. For those of us who have always found our doctors well qualified to take care of us, it is difficult to know what the Government finds wrong with them.

My husband and I were married in 1948, the year the NHS started, so we will be celebrating 60 years of happy married life just as the country celebrates the start of the NHS in the same year. Therefore it seems fitting to write to congratulate the NHS on its anniversary and to defend the doctors in the British Medical Association from attack.

For all of our 60 years together, we have received first-class care and attention from our doctors and it is with a feeling of shock that we read of Government intentions to change the system and to hear that local surgeries may disappear.

It is probably easy for highly placed surgeons and busy politicians who move in the theatre of large hospitals and Parliament to feel out of place in the small, very practical, down-to-earth surgeries of local GPs. This does not mean that the latter are wrong or inefficient.

Our good general practice tradition must continue to be valued, cherished and supported. The level of direct and regular personal contact with a small group of doctors is of far greater worth than at a large clinic, however well-equipped.

should not fail our schools

Far from threatening these schools with imminent closure, the Government is allocating £400m to help all schools in this situation to improve further by 2011.

From all the work I do with Harlow schools and from my discussions with DCSF, I am very confident that all Harlow's secondary schools will pass the threshold by 2011.

The National Challenge, which has worked superbly well in London schools to raise performance, is an opportunity to build on the improvement in Harlow schools in the last decade. I will be doing everything I possibly can to help our schools.

Bill Rammell MP
Westminster, London

SIR, As a former pupil of Mark Hall School, I feel that I must correct the current misconceptions about educational achievement at the institution.

The Government's decision to take the percentage of students being awarded five or more A*-C grades in virtual isolation as a measure of an educational establishment's success invalidates the statistics.

Other important factors are omitted, such as natural variations in abilities both between catchments and between the different cohorts of students sitting the exams from one year to the next. Furthermore, no consideration is given to the fact that many very able students gain places at institutions which impose an entrance exam to guarantee high grades. Excellent establishments, such as Mark Hall, are thus denied a balanced intake.

The Star article notes that Brays Grove, Stewards, and Mark Hall all have high value-added scores. Although I personally only ever attended Mark Hall, this does not surprise me. Throughout my years at Mark Hall, the emphasis of the dedicated staff was on ensuring that every pupil did the best that they possibly could.

Students were divided on the basis of ability from Year 8 onwards. The quality of teaching in whichever set I was placed was very high.

Having left with 11 A*-C grades, I do not think the school can be said to be 'failing'. On the contrary, I was able to progress to AS and A2 Levels at Harlow College (2003-05) and to Queen Mary University of London (2005-present).

Far from improving the percentage of pupils gaining five or more A*-C grades, declaring Harlow schools to be 'failing' risks decreasing the figure as a greater proportion of the more able students seek places at selective schools outside the town.

Thomas Newens
Rue Mercière, Bordeaux

SIR, Your front page headline about secondary schools in last week's Star simply cannot be justified.

Parents, governors, staff and students are dismayed by what they see as an inaccurate, deeply irresponsible approach to the subject of education in Harlow.

The five-plus A*-C measure of school achievement is only one of 15 criteria on which schools are judged and headlining this alone completely overshadows all the other positive work which the schools do.

In 2004, 2005 and 2006, Mark Hall achieved well above 30 per cent A*-C, and the trend was upward. In just one year, 2007, our score fell to 27 per cent.

It is simply not true to say that Harlow secondary schools are 'failing'. At Mark Hall, we are working hard to bring our five-plus A*-C pass rate above 30 per cent again in 2008 and students continue to benefit from a whole range of school activities.

Our schools are full of hard-working, dedicated staff – and students – who are always striving to raise standards and ensure that all students achieve their best.

Sandra Newens, Chair of Governors,
Mark Hall Community School
First Avenue, Harlow

SIR, I write in response to the story about half of secondary schools facing closure. Brays Grove isn't failing; last year, the results were the best Brays Grove has seen and I think the best from all six schools, with 55 per cent A*-C grades – to me, that isn't failing! This year the examiners haven't even begun to mark our exam papers so I am confused as to how we are failing? Yes, we are closing down which, in my opinion, is the wrong decision and I'm sure many will agree with me, but that doesn't necessarily mean we're failing!

Brays Grove was unable to get enough students but yet we manage to keep on top with grades, yet schools like Mark Hall and Stewards, who have many students, are still underachieving. Brays Grove is a successful school and I will remain a proud member of that school.

Amy Bottomley
Tilbury Mead, Harlow

● EDITOR'S NOTE. Judging by the reaction of some of our readers, it is important to point out the Star was only reporting the Government's announcement on school GCSE targets. This in no way implies this newspaper believes the schools are failing.

Angle given help pledge

By LOUISE SASSOON

News Editor

sassoonl@hertsessexnews.co.uk

HOUSING bosses have promised to help every tenant of The Angle find new homes in a major step towards averting a homelessness crisis when the building is shut.

The pledge came as residents met with managers of the facility in Fourth Avenue, Harlow, to discuss their future ahead of the December closure.

Housing association South Anglia Housing is closing the building to flatten it and make way for affordable homes because of health and safety concerns, under-occupation and its general condition.

The move left tenants fearing they would be made homeless after learning the organisation had no obligation to re-house them.

But after discussions with local charity Streets2Homes, the company has decided to plough thousands of pounds into providing a six-month support package which will bring in specialist advisors to help all 61 residents find new accommodation.

Speaking at Tuesday's meeting, South Anglia Housing managing director Chris Ellison said: "We guarantee to work with everybody, if they want us to, to try and get them somewhere to live. We don't want to make anybody homeless."

He added the weekly surgeries at both The Angle and Steets2Homes' base in Wych Elm would give financial and legal advice plus a rundown of housing options.

Resident Mustafa Osman said he was angry people will not be moved to the new housing planned for the site and added they cannot be moved up the priority list for council housing until they are served notice in July.

Mr Ellison said he was aware of legal constraints but stressed all concerns will be addressed by the advisors.

Afterwards, he said: "I'm confident that if people take the advice and help we can find them better accommodation for the future."

A Streets2Homes spokesman said it was pleased to be helping the tenants.

Tories build on their local election victory

THE Conservative Party has strengthened its power base at the Civic Centre after thrashing Labour to win the Harlow Common by-election.

Tory Clive Souter cruised to victory in Thursday's poll, securing 959 votes in a 37 per cent turnout.

Labour candidate Norman Knight polled 628 votes, failing to retain the seat previously held by Greg Peck who died earlier this year.

Liberal Democrat James Rideout finished third with 419 votes – almost twice the number the party secured last year – and former Lib Dem Jim Pailing, standing as an independent, polled 53 votes.

The result compounded Labour's recent misery at the polls after the Conservatives won full control of Harlow Council at May's local elections.

It ended the four-year reign of the Labour/Lib Dem coalition and reducing Labour, which held the authority with an iron grip from 1973-2000, to its smallest ever number of councillors.

The by-election result means the Tories now have 19 seats, followed by the Liberal Democrats with eight and Labour with six.

pledge to retain weekly refuse collections, Mr Souter accused the group of trying "every trick in the book" to hang on to the ward by scaremongering with horror stories about rotting waste and rats.

"Nothing could be further from the truth and they know it," he added.

Council leader Andrew Johnson also said he was "sorry Labour campaigned the way they did" and said the victory had given the Tories a "comfortable cushion" on which it can govern Harlow over the next two years.

Labour leader Mark Wilkinson dismissed the claims of scaremongering and said he was not surprised by the result.

"Things were unlikely to change dramatically in the five weeks since May 1," he said. "People are protesting and we as a party have to respond to that."

"However, comparing this result with all other wards on May 1, there has been some movement back towards Labour."

"One of the reasons for this was our very strong opposition to fortnightly black bag collections. We will continue to campaign against Harlow's Conservative council's desire to move to fortnightly black bag collections."

Pre-school 'broke no rules'

OFSTED has failed to apologise to an Epping Upland pre-school for wrongly closing it for three months.

Fledglings, based at Epping Upland Primary School, was told by Ofsted it was flouting regulations and had to either relocate or close.

The pre-school uses the primary's hall and has been established for 40 years. But in March a Government inspector claimed strict rules had been broken because primary school staff and children were using the hall for access to a new learning support classroom.

Manager Lisa Jeffery was told immediate action would have to be taken and, after relocation was dismissed as an option, the pre-school closed immediately.

Ofsted has now reversed the decision, admitting no rules had been broken because only vetted staff and schoolchildren walked through the hall.

OPEN: The pre-school celebrates

Mrs Jeffery, who was not paid during the closure nor offered compensation, said: "It just seems like it was completely unnecessary disruption for the parents as they were told without warning to find places for their children elsewhere."

"Considering we look after children who are about to go to big school, it doesn't seem fair and was a massive inconvenience.

She added the nursery had not yet received a direct apology for the disruption.

An Ofsted spokeswoman denied any wrong doing, stating the closure was entirely about the safety of the children and confirmed the hall was still allowed to be used for access.

Thief is spared jail term after addiction fight

A MAN avoided prison because a judge was impressed with the way he has dealt with his drink and drugs problem.

Steven Kingett (48) of Taylifers, Harlow, admitted theft and driving while disqualified at Luton Crown Court on Thursday.

He was given an 18-month suspended jail term after the court heard he had made a 'real effort' to kick his drink and drug habit. He was also banned from driving for a year and told to pay £300 costs.

Prosecuting, Edmund Vickers said that on July 12 last year Kingett was given a four-week jail sentence, suspended for a year, for theft.

But on July 15, police stopped him leaving a building site with 35 scaffolding beams worth £1,600. He gave a false name and claimed he was doing a cash-in-hand job for a man and did not think it suspicious. The court heard Kingett had been in court 23 times since 1976.

Miss Sophie Langevad, in mitigation, said: "All his previous offending has been linked to his use of alcohol and drugs. He no longer drinks and has been clear of drugs for seven months. He has made real efforts to change."

Judge Gareth Davies said: "At 48 it is time you packed it in. The only thing that stops me sending you straight to prison is that you have made a very impressive response to assistance with your drug problem."

Anger at snub from charity over donation

A CHARITY has been criticised for refusing a "substantial" donation from a businessman. Mo Ghadami – who owns several buildings in Harlow including the now-closed businesses Polekatz pole dancing club, Mo's Leisure and The Paradise Club – said he had offered an annual donation to the Michael Robert's Charitable Trust, in Wych Elm, a Christian cause which looks after socially disadvantaged people, only for it to be declined.

The trust said it had closely reviewed the offer and decided it did not need his help, but the decision has left Mr Ghadami questioning the move.

"I wanted absolutely nothing in return," he insisted. "This has really surprised me as they seemed really keen when I first offered."

Mr Ghadami, who donates to other local charities, added: "It would have been a substantial amount and it would have been long-term. I think those who fundraise for the charity have a right to know why the donation was turned down."

Trust secretary Gary Knott said it was in a position to be able to turn down donations, adding: "All our applications for donations are considered and we make a decision on what we see."

"We do like to receive funding and support but from our point of view we have to review what we are offered. Mr Ghadami just visited me ad hoc and no amount of money was mentioned."

'I can't afford fee to get dog back'

By JIM TANFIELD

tanfieldj@hertsexnews.co.uk

A DEVOTED dog owner whose pet escaped after a passer-by opened her garden gate fears it may have to be rehoused due to a charge imposed by Harlow Council.

Six-year-old Patterdale terrier Bruno was missing from his Ladyshot home on Thursday night and was later picked up by council dog wardens.

The authority has demanded £95 from owner Penny Smith for his return or it will re-home him but she says she cannot afford the fee, which has since risen to £104, and can see no option but to let the dog go.

Mrs Smith said: "He's a really loved dog and I thought it was strange when he didn't appear for a while so I went looking and the gate was wide open. It seems really unfair and my kids are so upset as I can't afford the fees."

In an unrelated incident, Jason Spencer (30), of Bishopsfield, was also highly critical after his dog was picked up and handed in by a member of the public.

The dog, which is microchipped, was standing at the end of a path leading from Mr Spencer's house when he said she was taken on Saturday night.

But despite explaining the situation, he was ordered to pay the fee or have the dog rehomed. He said he now faces losing his pet because he can't afford the charge and claims he was told he cannot pay in instalments.

The council defended its policy, stating all owners have a legal duty to prevent their pets from straying and that all dogs in public should be wearing a collar.

"A dog will be returned once a £25 statutory fee set by Government, the kennelling costs, any vet's bills and a £13.11 admin fee is paid for by the owner," said a spokesman.

"Dogs must be kept for a minimum of seven days if not claimed by their owner. After that time, if not reclaimed by an owner, dogs will be sent for re-homing via an animal charity."

Mugabe jibe at new Tory chief

THE former Labour joint leader of Harlow Council has accused his Conservative successor of behaving "like Robert Mugabe" after his party was left with just one member on each council committee.

Tony Durcan, who stepped down as leader of the Labour group after his party's defeat at last month's local elections, compared new Tory council chief Andrew Johnson to the Zimbabwean president over claims the size of committees had been fixed.

At Tuesday's council meeting it was revealed the number of councillors on each committee – eight or nine on most – will be slightly less than in the last municipal year. With committees reflecting the political make-up of the council, this gives Labour one seat on each.

Mr Durcan complained: "They could have made the committees larger giving us two seats on each. It's a deliberate attempt to silence the voice of Labour, stifle opposition and disenfranchise our supporters. It feels a bit like Robert Mugabe in Zimbabwe."

But Mr Johnson said to achieve an accurate balance, committees would have to be increased to an unworkable 17 members or more to give Labour a bigger representation.

"Labour are entitled to an 18 per cent proportion of councillors," he told the Star. "There are only six of them now so it's quite difficult. If they want a bigger representation, they could always try getting more people to vote for them."

Scruffy robber makes off with safe contents

RAIDERS made off with a substantial sum of money in a robbery at a Harlow newsagents.

Police have released details of the incident in which a staff member was forced to open a safe at a shop, in Fishers Hatch.

The robbery, at McColl's Newsagents, took place on Monday at 5.30am just as a member of staff was opening up the store.

As the employee was at the rear of the shop he was approached and threatened by a scruffy man with a strong Irish accent.

The suspect, who is believed to have made off on foot, is also described as white, aged 35-40, with scruffy dark brown hair and squinting eyes. He wore a tight black T-shirt and dark trousers.

Police believe a second man may also have been involved.

MP offers the Hawks a hand

HARLOW MP Bill Rammell has given his support to Harlow Town Football Club to help entice new sponsors to the club. Mr Rammell was present at a special open evening staged by backroom Hawks staff at Barrows Farm last Thursday. "We're very grateful for the kind support from Mr Rammell. I know that with him taking time out of his busy daily schedule, Harlow Town Football Club will certainly benefit," said newly appointed chairman Simon Morgan. Businessmen were given guided tours of the stadium and discovered how the club functions commercially. The Hawks will stage a similar event on July 9.

Festival gig puts Harlow firm centre stage

A HARLOW firm has staged an impressive business coup after winning itself top billing at this year's Glastonbury Festival. Alistage, in Edinburgh Way, has secured a lucrative deal to supply modular stage equipment to the event. The specialist firm is one of the largest single stockists of stage equipment in the country and will supply upwards of 1,000 units for next weekend's three-day festival. The first batch of equipment has already been transported down to the site, with the construction of the stages expected to take about 1,000 working hours to complete. Managing director Colin Wright said there could be logistical problems with supplying a major event. "It does come with a lot of headaches for our office staff and especially our build crew!" he said. "Once the show is over, then our team has to commence the task of dismantling the equipment and getting it back to Harlow so that it can then be used for the next festivals on the calendar. "Should it rain, the stage decks will invariably come back covered in half of Somerset! Last year, the clean-up operation became so difficult that the services of the neighbouring car wash facility had to be used to supplement the company's own efforts!"

Shop reopens and one goes

SAWBRIDGEWORTH'S retail scene is undergoing a shake-up, with one Bell Street shop leaving and another relaunching. The Natural Flooring Company reopened on Monday under new management and the new name of Natural Flooring UK Ltd. Meanwhile, All Round Pregnancy Care is moving to Bishop's Stortford after only a year as part of an expansion. Owner Nicky Needham is relocating to premises next to Mumps Maternity. Both will trade under the banner of the All Round Pregnancy Care Centre. Nicky was sad to be leaving Sawbridgeworth but the new venture meant she could offer a bigger and better service to mums-to-be.

Jobs to go in GSK shake-up

By CHRIS MOSS
moss@hertsessexnews.co.uk

ONE of Harlow's biggest employers is set to make a series of job cuts in a further blow to the town's economy.

Pharmaceuticals giant GlaxoSmithKline has announced it plans to shed an unknown number of staff from the firm's research and development operations – including some working at the company's Edinburgh Way site.

The company is struggling in the face of competition from cheaper generic medicines and has already made staff cuts in other departments.

Its profits have also reportedly been hit by an estimated £1bn annual loss in sales of diabetes medication Avandia after a report last summer which suggested a possible link between the drug and an increased risk of heart attacks in those taking it.

The redundancies are the latest stage of a cost reduction package announced last year which is intended to save GSK £700m a year.

Despite this, the firm has recently splashed out on the high-profile purchase of American drugs firm Sirtis for £362m.

"We continue to reshape our R&D operations to take advantage of new scientific opportunities and improve GSK's productivity," said a GSK spokeswoman.

"Regrettably, some job reductions are necessary and we will do everything we can to support those employees who are affected.

"These changes are part of GSK's longer-term strategy to ensure that we invest in key areas of future growth and evolve our business to compete effectively in what is a rapidly changing and challenging environment for pharmaceutical companies."

The announcement comes in the wake of considerable job losses at several other Harlow firms in the past two months. Almost 200 staff at TUI Travel will be out of work by September, while employees at United Glass, JJB Sports and Pitney Bowes have also been hit with compulsory redundancies since April.

Moon missiles

BRITISH scientists think they may have discovered a new way of going where no man has gone before!

They have been testing out special missiles to fire at the Moon in an attempt to learn more about what lies beneath the surface.

The missiles are known as penetrators. They look like rockets but each one is packed full of complicated scientific instruments designed to gather information that can then be sent back to Earth.

They will be used as part of the UK's first ever mission to the moon in 2013 when four will be fired into the Moon's surface and travel three metres underground.

The team of scientists behind the experiment hope the missiles will gather lots of important information such as the temperature of the moon and what it is made of.

The penetrators have been tested by being blasted into sand blocks which are thought to be similar to the Moon's surface.

The missiles have performed so well in the tests that the experts hope to one day use them to explore the moons orbiting Saturn and Jupiter, helping mankind find out even more about our mysterious solar system.

Schools' night of celebration

THE achievements of scores of Harlow's young people and their leaders was celebrated at an awards ceremony on Monday.

The Jack Petchey Foundation Achievement and Leader awards unites the town's six secondary schools, Harlow College, the West Essex Secondary Behaviour Support Unit, the Integrated Support Service and the Alternative Education Service.

Guests at Monday's presentations held at The Playhouse included Harlow MP Bill Rammell and Jon O'Connor, director of the Harlow Education Consortium.

Award winners received a medallion and framed certificate along with a cheque for £300 for their schools.

The 10 people receiving Leader Awards were praised for demonstrating their abilities to encourage and motivate young people. They, too, received certificates and medallions as well as cheques for £1,000 for their schools.

Presenting the awards, Mr Rammell said: "This is a celebration of Harlow success. I want to thank Jack because he is putting his money where his mouth is and we are seeing the tangible benefits of these awards."

Mr O'Connor added: "We thank the Foundation for recognising our youth and their value who we know are good people who will give something back to society. These awards are not about the best but about doing their best."

Entertainment was provided by students from Brays Grove Community College steel band, Burnt Mill boys dance group, Passmores School & Technical College, Amber Cutler and Katie Henderson from Burnt Mill School, St Mark's West Essex Catholic School, Mark Hall School's gymnastics squad and Harlow College dance group.

The Jack Petchey Foundation aims to help develop the potential of young people aged 11-25. Since it was established in 1999 it has awarded grants of £45m to schools, clubs and organisations throughout Essex and London.

Countdown to the Midnight Walk

Ready for a night to remember

ON Saturday night Harlow's network of cycle paths will become a sea of pink as hundreds of people take part in a charity event which is expected to raise tens of thousands of pounds for the St Clare Hospice.

After months of behind-the-scenes planning the first Midnight Walk will set off from the Water Gardens, the start/finish point of a 10km circular route around the town.

More than 1,200 people have signed up to take part in the walk. Registration on the night starts at 8pm and, after a warm-up led by staff from the Esporta health club, the walk is due to start at about 10pm.

If you are taking part, please remember to bring with you the registration card you were sent. No-one who has not already registered to take part will be allowed to join the walk on the night.

Marshalls, police officers, special constables and community support police officers will be positioned at various points along the route to guide the walkers along and to ensure there are no problems.

This week the Star, the official supporter of the Midnight Walk along with our sister paper the Bishop's Stortford Observer and Ten-17fm, is printing a cut-out-and-carry guide to all the information you need to know if you are taking part.

Leading the way will be Rita Cutts, director of nursing at the hospice. Rita has been driving forward the development of hospice services since her appointment in October 2006.

"We strive to be a centre of excellence in the provision of palliative care for local people, providing a wide range of specialist services without charge for people who have advanced, progressive life-threatening illness," she said.

"Last year we admitted 474 patients to our eight-bed inpatient unit at Hastingwood. Alongside this in-patient care, we have revamped our day hospice services and on July 1 day services will re-open to provide patients an opportunity to access our full range of services including symptom management, emotional support, occupational therapy, physiotherapy, complementary and creative therapies.

"From the feedback we receive from our patients and other medical professionals who work with the hospice we know that we need to spread the word about our work wider in the community and make the services as accessible as possible.

"With so many people coming along to join us on the night, the Midnight Walk is already raising awareness of our work and, of course, much-needed funds. I am very pleased to have the opportunity to lead the walkers off from the start line."

Director of fundraising Sue Upton said: "It is going to be a fantastic night! With over 1,200 walkers signed up to join us it will be a sea of pink!"

"We are hoping to raise an amazing £50,000 for the hospice and we hope it will be terrific fun for everyone."

ST CLARE Hospice cares for local people across West Essex and East Hertfordshire who have life-limiting illnesses such as cancer. It costs over £1.8m a year to provide these services, free of charge, to patients and their families.

Relying on the support of local people and organisations for three-quarters of its funding, the hospice needs raise at least £2,000 a day to provide the services that are needed so much. This may seem an impossible task, but with the help of people like you, it is possible!

Hundreds of fund-raising events take place every year and events may raise £20 or £2,000, but each one helps.

On Saturday, the biggest event in the history of St Clare Hospice starts from the Water Gardens, Harlow, when thousands of women take part in a midnight 10k walk around the cycle and footpaths of Harlow.

Fortcoming events include a golf day, summer ball and the annual fete held in the hospice grounds on July 27, where everyone is welcome and your support will be much appreciated.

Thank you to everyone on this page for their support - 20 per cent of the revenue will be donated to St Clare Hospice.

When the market met all our needs

By BEN WILKINSON

IT might be a dowdy affair today, but these pictures by local photographer Bob Malster show just how different the New Town's market was on the day it opened in May 1956.

Plans and inspiration for the market date back far earlier, however, and there was much debate about where it should go and what form it should take.

When Harlow Development Corporation met to consider the issue in 1948, for example, the question of an agricultural market was discussed. But this was ruled out for fear such an attraction would fail to take off.

There was also talk of building a market hall to house indoor stalls, although masterplanner Frederick Gibberd was said to prefer an outdoor square in the town's north-east corner, remarking that: "There would be more freedom in the skyline and the result could be something very good and unusual."

Predictions of success proved justified. By 1969, the Saturday market boasted 20 fruit and vegetable stalls, 10 general clothing stalls, three each retailing lingerie and hosiery, and two traders of hats and shoes. There were six toy stalls, four selling carpets, four for household goods, two for car and cycle accessories and one selling timber.

Other stalls sold radio and electrical equipment, lamp shades, gramophone records, eggs, confectionary and more.

Among those who used the market in the early days was Kathleen Chadwick, of The Fortunes. She recalls: "The square was full of stalls. We loved the plant stall of Mr Cakebread and his sister – he always put in 'spares' and told us how to grow them. I also remember Mr Bowers and his family who had the veg and green grocery stall." She added: "I wonder if anyone remembers the man who came on Bank Holidays and sold great bundles of materials and trimmings? He would send out cups of tea to people in the crowd and was a real character."

HOBBIES SHOW FURY

HARLOW Rotary Club members are furious after their booking of Netteswell School Hall for a major sports and pastimes exhibition was cancelled – just five weeks beforehand. They intend holding Essex County Council's education department responsible for any extra expenses incurred. The reason given for the cancellation is that work is due to start on adapting the hall for the new tertiary college.

BIG PLAN FOR JOBS PARK

PLANS are in the pipeline for a business and science park, a high quality industrial and commercial estate at Pinnacles West. The scheme is seen by Harlow Council as an opportunity to provide employment and economic development in the town.

LIBRARIAN RETIRES TO WRITE NOVEL

AFTER 45 years work with millions of books, divisional librarian Bertie Tuck is retiring to have a busman's holiday. In the quiet of his Epping home at Lynceley Grange, he has a partly written first novel to complete.

Has anything in this week's Nostalgia jogged your memory? Do you remember the Harlow Peace Festival, including the Kumanrun, in July 1983?

Supporting the children when parents get divorced

THE divorce process can be a difficult time for the parties involved. Parties may feel angry, bitter or resentful, but children are also affected.

It is an overwhelming experience when children's parents are going through a divorce. Children often go through the same emotions as the divorcing parents, but can find it harder to express them.

How you parent through a divorce plays a significant role in how children deal with the process and their ability to form relationships in the future. Nockolds' team of family solicitors offers these simple tips, which may assist:

1. Be honest with your children about what is happening and what is going to happen - your children will be aware of the difficulties in your relationship, as there is likely to be an atmosphere within the home. If they know what is going on and what is going to happen next, then they are able to prepare themselves. Bear in mind the appropriateness of any honesty; children should be protected from adult information.
2. Talk to your children and reassure them - talking to them will emphasise that everything will be OK. Some examples of what you can say to the children to help calm their fears are explaining that the love each parent has for them has not changed; that they did not cause the problem; that there will always be a family, but instead of being in one home, they will have a family with both Mum and Dad.
3. Stay strong in front of your children - if you appear in control, then they will feel reassured about what is going on.
4. Misbehaviour - children may misbehave when their parents are going through a divorce to enable them to gain some control over the situation. You must work with your ex-partner and parent your children together, showing your children a united front. This will ensure that your children do not play one parent off against the other.
5. Do not be negative about your former partner - you need to put your feelings for your ex-partner to one side and remember that they are still a parent to your children. Bad-mouthing a parent will make a child feel that they have to choose sides and they do not. Ensure that the children know that both parents will still be part of their lives. Involving professionals - sometimes children find it difficult to talk to their parents, as they do not want to hurt their feelings, but family specialists can help and give someone else for children to talk to.

Personalised nursery advice from team

BY booking an appointment with the Nursery Advice team at John Lewis Welwyn Garden City, parents to be will receive free, impartial advice and the most up-to-date information on the most relevant products to suit their lifestyle and household needs during a personalised, two-hour consultation.

The team's advisers are able to demonstrate products and talk through specific pros and cons of each and – if needed – every single product!

When decisions have been made, a list of product choices specific to each customer's needs is created, including everything from prams to potties and clothing to carrycots.

Mothers and fathers to be can also take away a checklist of all the basic essentials, including leaflets covering feeding, sleeping, prams and car seats.

The service is additionally designed to help cater for the ever-increasing popularity of the baby shower phenomenon.

From the shopping list of nursery purchases selected during the consultation, John Lewis will then generate a custom-made nursery list, so friends and family can participate in all the fun of buying for baby!

To book an appointment, contact John Lewis Welwyn Garden City on (01707) 384750 for the Nursery Advice service.

Get designer style for kids at Boutini

FRENCH Connection Kids, Jean Bourget, Catimini, Freoli and Kenzo Kids are among the cutting-edge children's clothing brands stocked in Boutini, the new Hertford children's boutique, which opened in April. Also available are the very popular No Added Sugar, Snuglo and Oh! Baby London brands, whose witty slogans really appeal to mums, dads and kids alike.

Situated in a listed building at 1 St Andrew Street, Boutini offers contemporary clothing for babies and children aged 0 to 12, as well as handcrafted wooden toys, gifts and eco-friendly bath and bodycare ranges.

Boutini offers a cosy and welcoming shopping environment, with knowledgeable staff on hand to help with gift ideas and suggestions.

Owner Jane Meekoms is a mum herself and has been a fashion designer for 10 years.

"I love kids' fashions and I felt there was a gap in the market in Hertford for good quality, well-designed kids' clothes, toys and gifts," said Jane. "There are so many great children's wear brands out there and until now, there hasn't been anywhere locally you could buy them. The clothing brands offered at Boutini are available nowhere else in Hertford."

So far, Jane has been proved right if the mums of Hertford are anything to go by! From day one, they have been busy spreading the word about this great new shop.

"It has been amazing that all the customers are so positive and glad we have opened!"

Jane has handpicked the brands and many of the products are from fair trade, socially-responsible manufacturers and organic companies including Earth Friendly Baby, Natalia & Noonoo.

Boutini also has a thriving online store at www.boutini.com, which is great for sending gifts, as p&p is free on all orders over £20.

Gift wrapping is complementary at Boutini, as is free delivery within Hertford. "We offer a personal service and every purchase should feel special, whether it is for your children or if you are sending a gift," said Jane.

Centres offering help for under-5s

If you have a child under the age of 5, then the work of Sure Start Children's Centres will be of interest to you! Children's Centres offers support to families, children and groups and organisations that work with children under 5. Through the work they do, they aim to give children the best possible start in life and help parents to make informed choices. Unless you know what support is available in your area, it can be difficult to make those choices.

There is a booklet available, which contains information on the different services on offer, including informal groups, support to improve work-related skills, toy libraries and childcare facilities. If you are new to the area, are a new parent, or simply wish your child to have access to a wider range of activities, these services offer the opportunity for parents and children to make new friends and learn new things.

Sure Start Children's Centres work in partnership with a wide range of organisations to deliver services to the community, and are always looking to learn more about the services available in our area.

If you have any suggestions for new services, ideas to improve what is already on offer or if you wish to include your service for under-5s in the Children's Centre directory, contact 0844 800 9880.

Pre-school playgroup holding open day on Monday

LITTLE Hadham Preschool Playgroup is holding an open day for prospective parents next Monday, June 23.

It will be an opportunity to come along and view the first class facilities offered within a purpose-built building, located along the A120 at Little Hadham and just a five-minute drive from Thorley and St Michael's Mead.

Little Hadham Preschool Playgroup offers children from the age of two-and-a-half, a happy and friendly environment to play, learn and grow. It gives children an ideal opportunity to make friends, gain important social skills and, most importantly, have fun.

Staff are fully-qualified and there is a high staff-to-child ratio, with a maximum of 18 children per session. There are three afternoon sessions per week. The playgroup is proud to hold a Herts Quality Kite Mark and an 'outstanding' grade from Ofsted. Places are available for September 2008, so come along between 1pm and 3:30pm to meet the staff and children - everyone is welcome.

Little Hadham Preschool Playgroup, Stortford Road, Little Hadham, SG11 2DX. Tel: (01279) 771285.

Nursery looking forward to seventh anniversary

CELEBRATING its seventh anniversary this month, Children's Nest Nursery in Cheshunt offers a year-round service for children aged from babies through to school age.

Owners Linda Rodney and Lesley Pamphlett, together with their staff and the children who attend the nursery, are all looking forward to celebrating the anniversary, which is on June 25.

The nursery is registered to care for up to 35 children, some of whom attend every day and others who come in for just one or two sessions. It is open Monday to Friday, from 8am until 6pm.

The children are offered home-cooked meals throughout the day, which are prepared by Maria, the nursery's Portuguese cook. Full-time staff are qualified to Level 3 or above and one of the owners was one of the first in the country to achieve Early Years Professional Status (a new, nationally-recognised qualification introduced by the Government to raise the status in the childcare sector).

She is also a qualified teacher, who oversees the nursery education sessions for the 3- and 4-year-old children, to prepare them for starting Reception at school.

The children are offered a wide-range of activities, both indoors and out.

Children's Nest is also setting up a new nursery in Bishop's Stortford, scheduled to open in September. This is planned to be a similar nursery to the existing successful one in Cheshunt, offering a family-run, professional and caring service to the parents and children in the

Teach your baby how to swim

ENROLLING in baby swimming classes is a great way to bond with your baby.

Baby swimming is proven to enhance physical development and increase early muscular growth. It also improves co-ordination and the physical work out will strengthen your baby's heart, lungs and respiratory system. Parents often report an improved feeding and sleeping routine in children who swim regularly.

Swimming is a life skill and at Minnows to Sharks Swimming School, babies are taught the very skills which could one day save their life. The qualified and experienced teacher will show you how to hold your baby in the water in a safe and relaxed manner and give you all the top tips to ensure every class is a success.

Parents are educated throughout the course and as a result, happy, energetic babies return each week. Learning to respond to commands can make your baby sharper mentally, increasing levels of awareness and understanding. Babies acquire a new independence once in the pool, as water provides a truly liberating environment.

For more information on swimming for all ages and abilities, call (01992) 619662 or visit www.minnowstosharks.co.uk.

Town in tune for first summer music festival

IT will be a case of mad dogs and Englishmen going out in the midday sun when Harlow stages its first annual summer music festival.

The Midsummer Music Festival will take place on Saturday, in Market Square, and is set to showcase the town's newest talents plus some of the more seasoned professionals it has produced.

Harlow's favourite punk sons The Newtown Neurotics will be taking us back to their roots after a 20-year hiatus from the town with their blissfully crafted sound. Kicking off the show at 1.30pm will be Reederz, currently the youngest-ever finalists in the National Live And Unsigned music competition.

The teenaged four-piece are hoping to take the title the following Saturday at the Dame Peggy Ashcroft Theatre, in Croydon; for more information, visit the band's MySpace.com site.

They will be joined by Harlow-based soul and funk group, Back 2 Funk and Grammy-nominated jazz guitarist Martin Taylor, along with vocalist Alison Burns, are a treat not to be sniffed at.

Town centre development manager Richard Denney spearheaded the project and said: "I saw a big open space that just shouted to be filled with people enjoying themselves and dancing to music."

"We had The Animals playing a few weeks ago and that was so successful we thought we would like to do another event and, hopefully, to see it grow in the future."

Karen paints a reputation

By JIM TANFIELD

A FORMER Harlow College student has taken the art world by storm with her stunning and innovative prize-winning creations.

The work of Karen Adams can be seen hanging on walls as far afield as France, Spain, New Zealand and Bermuda and is currently on show in the open exhibition at Harlow's Gibberd Gallery, in the Civic Centre.

Karen, from Bishop's Stortford, studied graphic design at the college in 1984. After an horrific car crash and several unsatisfying occupations, she went on to study interior design and decorative paint techniques and wall finishes at London's Regency Academy.

"It was the cumulative effect of studying both interior design and decorative paint which inspired me to explore a new concept in contemporary painting, creating highly tactile three-dimensional works using multi-layers of contrasting textures and materials," said Karen.

"Both the abstract compositions and the more representational images use either subtle palette ranges of complementary hues and tints or very dramatic and dynamic colour ways."

The open show at the Gibberd Gallery represents one of several exhibitions for which Karen has been hand-picked from thousands of other artists' submitted pieces.

Her art won the Abstract or Experimental Art category for beginners at The Society for All Artists in 2006.

She also managed to make the shortlist for the prestigious Royal Academy's open exhibition from a list of 13,000 entrants and said: "The academy was kind enough to comment that this was a remarkable achievement."

The exhibition at the Gibberd Gallery runs until Saturday week and is free to enter from Monday to Saturday.

A tyrant ruler to some but visionary to others

certificate 15, running time 2h 5m

DIRECTOR Sergei Bodrov's sprawling epic about the rise of Genghis Khan is fearlessly Shakespearean in its bloodletting and beauty.

The award-winning Bodrov follows up the gorgeous Prisoner Of The Mountains with the early life of the infamous Mongol warlord.

Based on historical accounts and co-written by Bodrov himself, Mongol delves into the dramatic and harrowing story of the ruler who was born as Temudjin in 1162.

As it follows Temudjin (Tadanobu Asano) from his birth into slavery to the battle that sealed his destiny, this is a rounded biopic of the future conqueror, revealing him to be not the evil brute so beloved of pseudo-historians and cartoonists but as an inspiring, fearless and visionary leader.

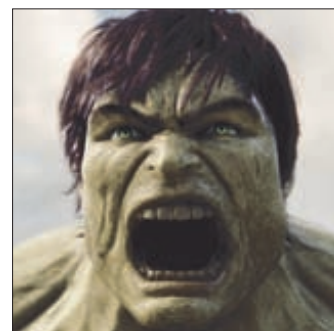

Mongol details the making of an extraordinary man and the foundation on which so much of his greatness rested: his relationship with his wife, Borte (Khulan Chuluun), his lifelong love and his most effective consigliere. Beautifully shot in the bleak wildernesses of Russia and Kazakhstan, the very lands which created Khan – a posthumous title meaning emperor – Mongol gives us an almost cinematically untouched period, Grigori Kozintsev aside.

Played stoically by Asano, Temudjin's rise to the man who owned almost half the known world is both sincere and believable.

The performances, coupled with the surprise love interest element, makes Bodrov's film a must for anyone interested in the indisputable historical facts surrounding the man whose name has become a byword for tyranny.

THE INCREDIBLE HULK

certificate 12a running time 1h 52m

AFTER director Ang Lee's half-cocked arthouse Hulk of 2003, a more exciting and traditional approach has been taken by Louis Leterrier.

With more than a cheery wave to the 1970s TV show of the same name – in fact, the opening sequence directly alludes to it – the scale is much, much bigger.

In the TV show, Dr David Banner would lose his rag, along with yet another delightful Wal-Mart shirt and trouser combination, and transform into the raging beast at anything from a bee sting to a traffic jam.

Now Banner (the superb Ed Norton), first name Bruce a la the original stories, has a job to do on the global stage.

Looking for a cure for his metamorphosis and dreaming of his lady love Betsy Ross (Liv Tyler) and how he may never have her because of his condition, he's tracked down in South America by a unit of US commandos led by Emil Blonsky (Tim Roth).

He escapes unscathed, but not before making a lasting impression on them with his, well, incredible powers.

Back in the US, military scientists under the guidance of Betsy's dad, General "Thunderbolt" Ross (William Hurt), are hard at work developing a super soldier programme (incidentally, the same project which was used to create Captain American in the Marvel universe).

They succeed with Blonsky as a test subject, imbuing him with all kinds of Matrix-style powers, but he pushes the programme in a whole new direction when he compels a doctor helping Banner to inject him with the latter's blood, mutating into the staggeringly powerful creature The Abomination.

There's only one other force on the planet who even has a chance of stopping it, and luckily Banner's prepared to step up just in time for a climactic confrontation of behemoths on the streets of New York.

STONER rock can often seem like a trudge through the monolithic footsteps left by Black Sabbath and their doomy, riff-laden ilk, but when it's deconstructed with such gloriously blissed-out languor, you can't help but melt into the iridescent, slow-motion detonation prophesied by every clangorous, reverb-drenched chord.

These five fresh-faced teens have only played together for a matter of weeks, but already Great Scott's cohesion and coherence is impressive indeed.

The band execute their deliciously sonorous doomsday drone-rock with the skilled hands of spaced-out soothsayers three times their age. Like the soundtrack to an impending apocalypse, their sound is a loosely strung mesh of fuzz-toned guitars,

FLAVORS OF ENTANGLEMENT

Alanis Morissette (album, Maverick)

Despite selling a trillion discs warbling about how dreadful and unreliably profligate men are on her angst-ridden but enjoyable debut Jagged Little Pill, the Canadian has struggled to recapture form. Apart from the third tuneless and elegant release Under Rug Swept, there's been little to set her apart from the burgeoning body of powerful female vocalists. This more poppy and at times more Cher-like effort, with biker chick power chords and synths, is no exception. Alanis' slightly annoying habit of using angular polysyllables is ever present, although her voice is still powerful enough to interest diva fans.

THE CROSS EYED RAMBLER

Paul Heaton (album, Universal)

Trite pop songs about pencil cases and caravans might be a thing of the past for the former Housemartins and Beautiful South frontman, but things of the past are very much part of the present in his change of direction to northern rock. Elegiac and wistful, the album charts his boyhood and salad days, with about 50 per cent joy and the rest melancholy. The whole pub-performing maestro effect is

Love, madness and short circuits

I'M A CYBORG

(Tartan Asia Extreme, 15, retail)

A romantic comedy seems a pretty off-the-wall project from the man who delivered the bleak bloodbaths of revenge and flawed redemption that were Sympathy For Mr Vengeance, Oldboy and Lady Vengeance.

True to form, Korean director Park Chan-wook's I'm A Cyborg is as mad as a basketful of weasels, jam-packed with moments of goofy surrealism and jarring violence yet capable of absurdly touching whimsy.

After her beloved grandmother's mental breakdown and incarceration, Young-goon (Lim Su-Jeong) comes to believe that she's a cyborg, refusing to eat because human food will short-circuit her internal workings and taking 'sustenance' by licking batteries.

Institutionalised and getting progressively weaker, she spends her days talking to light fittings and vending machines while plotting to somehow break free and go to her grandmother's aid.

Her fellow inmates are an equally eclectic community and chief among them is the frequently masked Il-soon, a handsome young man whose fear that he is dwindling in significance and may eventually vanish altogether leads him to wander around 'stealing' the abilities and psychoses of those around him.

Drawn to Young-goon's plight, he sees a chance to restore some degree of his self-worth by helping her via his special powers.

It's nigh impossible to do justice to the film's successful blend of romantic froth and the harsh realities of mental illness, suffice to say that it works a treat.

Particularly unexpected are the moments when the camera's perspective slips into Young-goon's world and, believing herself fully recharged following a bout of electroshock therapy, she stalks Terminator-like through the wards with her arms outstretched, bullets erupting from her fingertips and shell-casings spilling from her mouth as she mows down the staff.

Just as surprising, although far more charming, she and Il-soon use their powers to reduce her to microscopic size and she's carried away on her bed into the distant mountains by a ladybird while the soundtrack swells with delirious yodelling.

Gently deranged, quixotic and unlike anything else you'll see.

Also featured on the disc are making-of, deleted scenes, trailers and an insightful interview with Park at The Barbican.

CHRYSLIS

(Momentum Pictures, 15, retail)

Taking ideas from cyberpunk, films noir and Japanese anime, this debut feature from French director Julien Leclercq is a visually pristine slice of near-future sci-fi wrapped around a labyrinthine plot.

Set in Paris in the year 2025, it opens with leading holographic surgeon Professor Brugen and her daughter Manon getting caught in a terrible car accident.

Elsewhere, hardboiled cop David (Albert Dupont) watches his partner/lover murdered in a gun battle with Bulgarian crook Nicolov (Alain Figlarz), leaving him desolate and hungering for revenge.

He's partnered with empathic rookie Marie and promptly does the loose cannon thing by going after Nicolov on his own initiative, hunting him down via a human trafficking ring and the bodies of dead illegal immigrants found with curious scars on their eyelids.

It's a trail that leads directly to Brugen's clinic, where Manon is still miraculously recovering from her injuries, and when David figures out the connection between the esteemed surgeon and violent criminal he opens the door to a nightmarish scientific advance.

First and foremost, Chrysalis is a visually ravishing film, desaturated of colour until it appears this entire world is sculpted from shades of gun metal grey. The future technology, too, is well used, dropped in casually for the most part and all the more credible for it.

And in Dupont it's got the perfect noir anti-hero, a battered, two-fisted knight errant only interested in avenging his dead love and more than capable of mixing it in the film's several bone-crunching close-quarters fight scenes.

But while Leclercq manages to interlaces his varied plot strands, they don't really begin to gel until very near the end and he allows several huge leaps of disbelief to be subsequently addressed with the most unlikely of explanations. That said, this is coolly stylish, brooding stuff and bodes well for future projects.

Also included is a making-of, storyboards and a trailer.

Star rating: ★★★

SEMI-PRO

(Entertainment In Video, 15, retail & rental)

Will Ferrell is one of those boats that left the island while I sat on the beach waving a puzzled farewell to all those toasting him as a comedic second coming.

He was pretty amusing as a cameo in Starsky & Hutch, but Elf? Really? And Anchorman: The Legend of Ron Burgundy? Bewitched? Talladega Nights: The Ballad Of Ricky Bobby? The pointless reboot of The Producers?

An output divided between mainstream comedy-light garbage or prolonged in-jokes poking fun at fairly specific niche characters hardly seems the stuff of genius and you can't help but wonder if anybody's going to be watching these films in a couple of years, let alone a couple of decades.

Whether you're standing on the deck guffawing or are scowling in bewilderment with sand between your toes, it's unlikely Semi-Pro will change your mind one way or the other.

It's 1976 and Ferrell plays Jackie Moon, maverick singer of lurve songs and owner/coach of the Flint Tropics basketball team, the usual bunch of misfit no-hopers. When his league is threatened with a merger which only the top four teams will survive, he recruits a former ace (Woody Harrelson) and starts turning his team's fortunes around via a series of unlikely tactics and silly promotions.

It's amiable enough and has a few laughs along the way, but this is a pretty undemanding and formulaic product.

down to a tee and the drumming is particularly superb. Better than you might think, due to the rough edges, but not as good as it could have been, given his time in the industry.

WEEZER

Weezer (album, Polydor)

Fourteen years since Buddy Holly, this is the nerdy LA slackers' sixth album and their third to be self-titled. For ease of reference, we're to refer to this as "the red album" apparently. Like last time, it opens with a slice of trademark self-deprecating, mildly humorous geek rock, with Troublemaker filling the Beverly Hills slot. And, as one would expect, it carries on in similarly solid fashion, with 12 tracks of very listenable – dare one say, almost easy listening at times – guitar rock.

UNIVERSE IN REVERSE

Infadels (album, Wal Of Sound)

More dance/rock crossover chicanery from the tiresome London five-piece, who seem to have crafted each of their interminably dull guitars-with-beats numbers to sound comfortably at home on the soundtrack of a high-octane Playstation game.

Seemingly convinced that blending formulaic rock riffs with bargain basement beats is somehow innovative, they conveniently forget that Apollo 440, The Lo-Fidelity Allstars et al were knocking out this sort of instantly forgettable tripe years ago. Yes, it's kind of catchy, and yes, it's almost danceable, but ultimately it's disposable, fast food dance rock that will leave you wondering why you didn't go for something more refined in the first place.

DISASTRO

Sonny J (album, EMI)

The weird and wonderful collide in this brilliant record from Liverpoolian turntablist Sonny J, which will have you tapping your toes and losing yourself in each of the soulfully funky vibes crammed into every track. From upbeat hyperfunk throwing you into a world where the sun always shines to classically chilled rhythms washing over your brain, it's a masterpiece.

Call now - available through the week ahead

Aries Mar 21-Apr 20
A matter of principle or a legal issue can switch into view. Don't put off dealing with this. Get informed, be it from your own sources of information or by consulting those in the know. Jobs that are linked to your people skills can also go well. Some Rams can find themselves sending thirty text messages or joining an on-line or newspaper dating service. Call me now for more advice.

Libra Sept 24-Oct 23
How you express yourself becomes important from now to November, so seize the moment. With Mercury also ending a backward motion, plans to expand your world can take a jump forwards. In fact, expect lots of lively activities and actions this week. If you're on holiday, romance can be blissful, whether you're settled or currently a free spirit. Call me now for your love scope in full.

Taurus Apr 21-May 21
You put your heart and soul into a relationship or cause. However, the other person or people seem to approach things as and when it suits them. Ring a bell? Then again if you're not taking your commitments seriously, it's time to turn over a new leaf yourself. Yet with resolve, such situations can start to be untangled. Be patient a little longer. Call my special prediction line for more.

Scorpio Oct 24-Nov 22
There have been a lot of discussions this year, but a financial issue or the basic security of your world, could be linked to the past. In fact, perhaps you need to revisit something. If you've been waiting on important correspondence or documentation, the wheels can begin to turn here too. Joint resources are favourable - if you pick the right options. Call me now for your financial forecast.

Gemini May 22-Jun 21
Charm has made you a lot of friends recently, but something deeper to your heart may have been creeping along at the speed of a snail. Now with your ruler picking up speed, so can your efforts to get ahead. Pleasingly, if you've been waiting for an upturn in your finances or news about a potential opportunity, a turning point is reached Gemini. Call now for your financial forecast.

Sagittarius Nov 23-Dec 21
Do you believe in luck Sagittarius? If you do, then this can be a week where you feel things can start to go for you again. If you don't, the impact of timing becomes crucial. This is particularly so with Pluto re-entering your sign and the Sun/Venus "love in". Your moves around romance and business dealings can be particularly well blessed. Call me now for your love scope in full.

Cancer Jun 22-Jul 23
Glamour planet Venus glides majestically into your sign and doubts that have undermined a close personal tie can fade or you can begin again. Confidential information is key so keep your ear close to the ground, because what you hear can be both surprise, and help to steer your moves. Something that initially looks unpromising, can take off well. Call for more news and advice.

Capricorn Dec 22-Jan 20
For the next five and a half months there'll be a change in the mood music which will begin piping out tunes that have an echo from your past. Try not to begrudge helping out those who are less fortunate. When you put your mind to it you can be a powerful advocate. Your commonsense can be a hot commodity and in demand from others. Call my special prediction line for more news.

Leo Jul 24-Aug 23
One friend can become so much more, but for now you may want to keep this happy development to yourselves. There will be a time to say you're an item, once you're both sure that's what you want. Socially, this week can be busy. Yet, if you're in a settled relationship, you or your partner can yearn.

Aquarius Jan 21-Feb 19
A delightful link can see you project a sunny disposition. People can also begin to understand one of your best ideas, whereas only recently, they seemed so baffled. And if one big aspiration has trodden water this year, before the end of 2008 it will begin to shape up just as you hope. A friend who has been out of touch can still have a part to play. Call now for more news and astral advice.

Virgo Aug 24-Sept 23
If you're someone who's comfortable with joining professional organisations, these can be an excellent way to network and advance your cause. If all this is a bit of a turn off, you will still need to interact with the world and the more polished you can be in your approach, then the better you are going to do. Think of the ways you can refine your tactics. Call for your in-depth forecast.

Pisces Feb 20-Mar 20
A home or garden improvement scheme or change can reach a high point. Share your new glamorous look with loved ones Pisces, perhaps by inviting them around for a soiree. Yet your career may reach a sticking point. You may need to use skills from your past or find yourself re-connecting with a role you'd thought was no longer relevant. Call for more news and advice.

IT'S that time of year again and the British social season is in full swing, with this week's Royal Ascot just one of a number of events taking place in the UK. Badminton was as popular as ever in May and equestrian fans will be looking forward to the three-day Burghley Horse Trials in September. Polo fans will be making their way to Cowdrey Park for the Veuve Clicquot Gold Cup in July, as well as Guards Polo Club for the Cartier International Day.

Closer to home, the equine enthusiasts amongst us will be handling the day-to-day necessities of looking after a horse.

Keeping a horse or pony at grass is more natural than stabling and as the horses or ponies can be kept as a group, the risk of behavioral problems or accidents occurring are less. Less attention is needed and costs are lower. However, there are also disadvantages, as the grass kept horse or pony may require greater preparation for riding, particularly if wet and muddy.

The horse should be checked daily for health and any signs of injury. The maintenance and management of the field is also an important part of the care of the horse or pony to ensure safety, high quality grazing and lack of poisonous plants.

Any grass-kept horse or pony should have a sheltered area available and this is not only important over the winter, when the horses and ponies wish to shelter from the winds, but equally so during the summer, as relief from the heat of the sun. Shelters can be either be man-made, or natural shelter can be provided by hedges and trees.

Many horses and ponies kept at grass thrive during the summer on grass alone, but as the grass subsides during the autumn and winter months, hay will need to be fed to compensate for the lack of grass available and additional feed may also be required during the colder months. During particularly dry summers, the grass available may become sparse and hay may need to be fed early.

Finer horses and ponies with white legs can be prone to Mud Fever over the winter months. During the spring, the grass available is lush and although not a problem for most horses and ponies, it can cause obesity and some ponies may also suffer from laminitis. Therefore, restricted access to grass may need to be considered and this can be achieved by the use of a muzzle, without the need to move the horse or pony or restricting access within the field.

During the summer, pale horses and those with pale areas on the face are particularly prone to sunburn, particularly around the nose and mouth, and this can be prevented by applying an equine sun cream at the beginning of each day.

Horses and ponies are also much bothered by flies during the summer and although their manes and tails and those of other horses nearby are put to use in flicking away flies, equine fly repellents applied daily provide relief.

Water should always be available and checked regularly and make sure you are registered with a good vet and vaccinations and worming are always up to date.

The jewel in the 207 crown

PEUGEOT'S 207 range features a 1.4-litre 16-valve petrol engine that, although generally competent, would not raise too much interest.

Not too powerful, not too expensive, not too thirsty and not too environmentally unfriendly, it pleads guilty to all of these — but it also has the ability to make the 207 come alive as an engaging and fun car to drive. The 1.4-litre 16-valve is offered in both 3-door and 5-door hatchback forms, the clever design ensuring that the 5-door loses none of the sporting style that is inherent to the car's character.

Peugeot is building the 207 at three sites in France, Spain and Slovakia, ensuring that as sales start to ramp up they'll have sufficient capacity to meet the demand.

The 1.4-litre 16-valve petrol-powered models reach 62mph in 15.6 seconds and have a top speed of 104mph. In the economy and environmental arenas, the combined cycle performance of the 1.4-litre 16-valve petrol averages 44.8mpg, with the CO₂ emissions figure coming out at a commendable 152g/km.

On the road is where the 207 1.4-litre 16-valve really shows its mettle. It revs easily and really sings when driven hard. The steering, ride and handling are superb on both 3-door and 5-door models and they are great fun to drive, especially on twisty, hilly roads, with the 1.4-litre engine showing its full flexibility. The gearbox has a crisp feel, with the changes being smooth yet positive.

Peugeot has taken care that the 207 is priced closely to key competitors like Renault's latest Clio and Fiat's Grande Punto. And that's despite the fact that it claims the 207 sets fresh class standards in terms of trim quality and equipment levels throughout the entire range.

The design follows the corporate image seen on other models in the range, like the 307 and 407, with the large 'smiling' grille and sharky front light cluster which extends almost back to the 'A' pillar.

The neat styling has shades of 206 about it, yet the car is completely different, based on the company's 'Platform 1' floor pan which it shares with the 1007. The striking and rather sporty look, which was designed in-house by Peugeot's own stylists, should maintain the strong customer following.

Sitting in the 207 1.4-litre 16-valve, you can immediately sense that this car is far removed from the 206 in terms of its quality and elegance. Plus the 207, even in the S level model, is head and shoulders above its equivalent 206 in terms of refinement.

The elegant centre panel houses all the usual heating, ventilation and audio switches while the binnacle behind the steering wheel features three circular dials, mirroring those usually seen on a motorcycle. The overall effect is very pleasing and gives the impression of a very upmarket product.

The front seats are very comfortable and give good support. In the rear, as with most vehicles in this sector, the available space is rather limited to the size of the passenger and driver seated in the front. With the front seats fully extended backwards, the space in the back can be a bit restricted.

And are the equipment levels really class-leading? It depends how you look at it. Two trim levels are available with the 1.4-litre 16-valve: S and Sport. The 1.4-litre 16-valve model does come surprisingly well kitted out, even in S level trim, with features that include power steering, remote control central locking with deadlocks, electric front windows with one-touch operation for the driver, stereo radio and CD player, driver and passenger seat height adjustment as well as 60/40 split folding rear seats.

A sophisticated braking system is also standard on this car, featuring ABS with EBD (electronic brakeforce distribution) and EBA (electronic braking assistance), ensuring the 207 stops quickly and in a controlled manner. The Sport, in addition, features 15-inch Monaco alloy wheels, sports front seats, front fog lamps, on-board computer as well as a leather-trimmed steering wheel and gear knob.

Safety has been designed into the 207 from its conception, so it was no surprise that it earned a five-star rating from the EuroNCAP tests. The 207's front end contains two impact absorption structures borrowed from the 407 that distribute impact energy more efficiently in the event of a collision. Sill reinforcements and tubular bars in the doors aid structural rigidity.

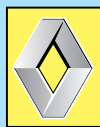

Numerous airbags are installed in the 207 and the front two 'adaptive' airbags have a dual-generator function that can vary their pressures according to the severity of the impact. Side airbags also feature as standard on all 1.4-litre 16-valve models. All 207s are fitted with two 3-point Isofix mountings in the rear outer seats, each of which can accommodate a child's Isofix car safety seat.

These days, when the diesel versions of a new model range are usually touted as the ones to go for, it makes a refreshing change to buck the trend and declare that a humble 1.4-litre 16-valve petrol is possibly the best all-round engine available in the 207 range.

This easy-revving unit is the jewel in the 207's crown but could easily be overlooked.

Jessop doubles up at awards

Basketball

PAUL Jessop won the Most Valuable Player and Players' Player awards at Harlow Hawks Basketball Club's annual presentation night.

Most Improved Player was Tom McBride.

The first team also received their Hertfordshire Basketball League division one runners-up award and East Region League trophy.

In division one, the promoted Hawks led the table for much of the season but eventually finished runners-up to Luton Fliers.

It was a stark contrast to the last time the Hawks were in the top flight two years ago when they finished bottom and were relegated.

Hawks also made it to the Herts County Cup final for the first time in their history, but again finished second to Luton despite a late rally.

In the National Founders Cup, Hawks were unable to emulate the success of the previous year as they were edged out in the semi-finals by Kingston Wildcats.

The junior sides had a good season in the Junior Central Venue League (JCVL) which was hosted for the first time in Harlow and proved very successful. The U-11 and U-14 Hawks were runners-up in their respective age groups.

Hawks will launch a second team next season, which will play in the Herts League division two.

The Harlow club will launch a second U-11 team in September and hopes to attract more U-17 and U-14 players in the summer.

Century man Ash ignites top Town

AN excellent unbeaten century from Ashley Alderson inspired Harlow Town as they swept to a massive home victory over Willingale.

Alderson faced just 80 balls and hit seven fours and two sixes to make 109 not out with the division three leaders going on to post 255-7, a massive score on a slow outfield.

Other main contributions came from Ramya Upadhyay (39) and James Hayter (19), with the latter sharing a 52-run seventh-wicket partnership with Alderson.

Willingale never recovered from the Alderson onslaught and were dismissed cheaply for just 82.

With ball in hand, Town struck early with bowling openers Hayter and Dan Calver claiming a wicket a piece with the score on just 6.

Skipper Vic Goddard was also in fine form fielding at silly mid off. He took a sharp one-handed catch from Hayter.

Other wickets were shared out by the team, including Simon Rowell (2-22) and Marc Lowers (2-2).

Wade Norcott took the final wicket of the innings from his very first delivery of the season to seal the victory.

In the same division, POTTER STREET (230-5) beat visiting Roding Valley (199-9) by 31 runs.

Surath Bastola scored 54 runs for Street before claiming 3-19.

Good batting contributions for the hosts came from Chandan

Katoch (59) and Mushtaq Ahmad (40).

Harlow Town's second team were not in action.

Harlow Town IIIs are second from bottom in division seven after beating Nazeing Common at home by 48 runs.

Town put on 209-5 before bowling out the visitors for 161.

Darryl Pettingell scored 77 and Nick Teale claimed 5-18.

In the same division, High Roding III (236) beat Potter Street IIs (144) by 92 runs.

Town's U-15 team (121, Bilal Ali 46) defeated Saffron Walden U-15s (87, Adam Maxwell 5-1) by 34 runs on Sunday.

Free tennis sessions are a smash hit

WATCH AND LEARN: Coach Ryan Harper gives youngsters some tennis tips in a free taster session on Saturday (TNRGXSSBX.04)

THE Wimbledon fortnight is fast approaching and around 300 keen youngsters enjoyed the chance to sample the sport at Harlow Lawn Tennis Club.

The Latton Bush club runs an outreach scheme with coaches running sessions at primary schools in Harlow.

Springing from this initiative youngsters were invited to attend a series of free open days at the club's Southern Way home.

Harlow held the first of these on Saturday and Sunday morning with Year 1 (5- and 6-year-olds) and Year 3 (7- and 8-year-olds) children enjoying themselves.

Skills covered included movement, hitting a stationary ball and a moving ball over the net. The older children also learned more about the skills required to build up a rally.

Will Calvert, Harlow

Lawn Tennis Club's chief coach, said: "The youngsters enjoyed it and we had good feedback from the parents. There is a lot of good talent there."

Harlow also held its finals day on Sunday.

Luke Spooner (19-year-old) defeated 14-year-old Essex county player Ben Stevenson 6-0, 6-2 in the men's final.

The women's final saw Lauren McKay beat Alannah Myers 6-2, 6-1 and in the men's doubles, Bob Barnett and Gary Clarke beat teenage pair Stevenson and Duncan Scott (18) 6-4, 7-5.

In the mixed doubles, Tim Miller and Sarah Miller defeated Ben Miller and Hollie Brown 6-2, 6-0.

Calvert added: "It was a good day and some of the players are much superior to ones you would see at other clubs on a finals day."

Simon Baulcomb went shortly after but the promoted Worthington played shots all round the ground in his effortless 65.

James Butler joined him and finished up on 37 not out, while Waqas Akhtar scored 11 not out after Worthington was finally dismissed.

Butler added: "Our bowlers are bowling well as a unit and the workload is being shared around. Nicky Baxter bowled well again and gives us an edge in the field."

In division one of the second XI league, Harlow seconds (181-4, Iain Nuttall 65 not out) beat Horndon-on-the-Hill (179) by six wickets at home.

In the division one of the third XI league, Harlow thirds (132-1, Alan Burton 60 not out) thrashed Walthamstow (129) away by nine wickets.

Harlow fourths (184-9) drew with Ilford fourths (187) in division four west.

Last stand seals draw

Buckhurst Hill 212-6, Epping 172-9

(Shepherd Neame Essex League, division three)

LAST pair Rehan Asghar and Kamran Khan held out as Epping secured a draw at Buckhurst Hill.

The visitors had chances to win Saturday's derby, but in the end had to rely on Asghar's 19 not out to avoid defeat.

Tight Epping bowling at the start of the match meant that Buckhurst Hill were always behind the run rate on what was a good batting track.

However, the Hill batsmen showed great discipline with good innings coming from R. Beckett (47), J. Allen (42) and T. Scott (72 no) to score 212 from their 52 overs.

The pick of the Epping bowlers was Dave Bickley with 3-50.

In response, Jason Whiting got Epping off to a flyer, scoring a rapid 77 and blasting several straight sixes.

He was ably supported by Pronob Roy (37), but when both wickets fell only Dean Majeed (23) offered any further hope.

Wickets tumbled but Asghar and Khan saw off the last 10 overs to save the game for Epping.

All-rounder's freak injury

SAWBRIDGEWORTH all-rounder Mick Burrell has been ruled out for the rest of the season after breaking a bone in his right foot in the Home Counties Premier League division two east victory over North Mymsms.

The player collapsed as he was about to bowl the third ball of his second over. He was taken to hospital where X-rays later revealed the extent of the injury. Sawbo (198) went on to win the match by 58 runs after wiping out Mymsms for 140.

The following day in the second round of the Evening Standard Challenge Trophy, Danny Wilson's side lost by 55 runs against Oxford. The hosts scored 228-9 but Sawbo were bowled out for 173.

Title heads West in district champs

BRAVE Passmores School pupil Joanne Cywinski overcame a mid-race fall to triumph in the 1,500m in the West Essex Schools District Athletics Championships at Mark Hall Sportscentre.

The 12-year-old had never run on a proper athletics track before but was a convincing winner despite the setback.

She destroyed the opposition on the final lap.

Athletes from Passmores, Mark Hall and St Mark's plus St John's in Epping faced rivals from West Hatch (Chigwell), Davenant (Loughton), Debden Park, King Harold (Waltham Abbey) and Roding Valley (Loughton & Buckhurst Hill) in the nine-school championships held on Thursday.

West Hatch won the event, finishing 200 points clear of second-placed Davenant.

Passmores were the best Harlow school, finishing third overall on 663 points.

Mark Hall trio Aidan Lee, Tom

Schools athletics

Larkin and Tom Richards all did well, as did Billy Falconer (Passmores).

Aidan won the Year 11 boys (age 15 and 16) 400m in 52.1 secs, while Larkin triumphed in the Year 10 boys (age 14 and 15) 200m in 22.9s.

In the Year 10 boys group, Richards won the javelin with a 42m throw and Falconer came first in the high jump with a 1.75m leap.

Hosts Mark Hall were 4th overall (560), St Marks were 6th (416) and St John's came 8th.

Passmores excelled most in the Year 7 and senior age groups (Years 10 and 11) where they came second, while Mark Hall's best place was in Year 8 where they came third.

The event was marked by rain and cold conditions but this did not detract from the enthusiasm shown by the youngsters and the support displayed for their colleagues when competing in races.

Jo Davey, competitions manager for Essex County Council, said: "It was good to see so many children enjoy themselves."

It's ladies day in mixed pairs cup

DARTS stalwarts Gary Barnett and Ronnie Green were left in the shade by their partners in the Harlow & District Premier Darts League mixed pairs competition.

Barnett's wife Tracy hit a 180 as the Young Pretenders reached Friday's final at the GPCA in Harlow.

The couple met the Moot House Arrows team, consisting of Ronnie Green and his wife Lynn.

And Lynn showed she is no slouch on the oche with excellent form.

She won successive games by hitting doubles and getting out on 56 and 96 (3, treble 19, double 18) as Moot House Arrows won 2-0.

Some 96 teams took part in the contest, involving a best of three games format from 401.

Centre hosts fun day

MARK Hall Sportscentre in Harlow played host to a football festival as boys and girls from special schools across Essex received expert football coaching as well as having the chance to record their own 'personal bests' in the FA Skills Challenges.

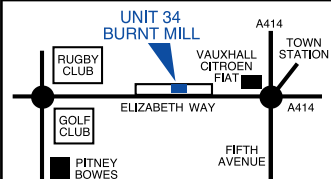

More than 50 children aged between 8 and 16 enjoyed a fun-filled day of football, including 4v4 matches in which the players demonstrated some of the tricks they had picked-up earlier in the day.

At the end the youngsters received goody bags, medals, T-shirts and certificates of achievement from sponsors E.ON.

Five alive for super Kiwi

TOM Worthington proved to be a matchwinner again at Southchurch Park as his all-round display guided leaders Harlow to a comfortable win over Southend-on-Sea.

The Kiwi player had taken 6-11 when Harlow beat Old Southendian and Southchurch on May 31 and on Saturday his 5-35 and 65 at the same ground were vital once again.

Harlow captain James Butler said: "Tom has only been out twice in the league this season so when Haroon Khan was ill, he was the natural choice to move up and replace him at four.

"He also bowled superbly in his second spell and is showing a real knack for coming back and blowing away the lower order."

Butler won the toss and put the home side in on a damp track. Southend started well, with Baiju Solanki (76) harsh on anything loose, taking his side

Southend-on-Sea 173, Harlow 174-4

Harlow won by six wickets (Shepherd Neame Essex League, division two) to 87-1 from 19 overs.

The introduction of Harlow's off spinner Nick Butler slowed the run rate before Worthington came back for his second spell and the middle and lower order were swept aside as the hosts slipped to 173 all out.

Nick Butler took 4-38 and Nicky Baxter also bowled well. Baxter also took a stunning catch at backward point to remove dangerous overseas player Ryan James for 27. Harlow's reply started positively, with Nick Butler particularly harsh on opening bowler Baz Zaka before Nilesh Odredra nicked one to the wicket-keeper.

'My vision for Hawks'

Ambitious new chairman unveils blueprint to take club towards Blue Square Premier

By ALAN SCOTT
Sports Editor
scotta@hertssexnews.co.uk

NEW Hawks chairman Simon Morgan has a five-year vision to take Harlow Town towards the promised land of the Blue Square Premier.

Speaking to Star Sport after his appointment, Morgan revealed how he plans to revitalise the Ryman premier division club.

Morgan replaces Steve Ray, who stepped down in October last year.

"I will continue [Steve Ray's] hard work. He is going to be a hard act to follow. The aim is to get the club into shape and push on over the next two or three years. I want to head towards the Conference [Blue Square Premier] in five years," Morgan explained.

Morgan, who joined the club in September 2005 as vice-chairman, said his first job would be to completely restructure the Board at Barrows Farm – and he will be looking at appointing new members not solely for financial reasons.

He plans to attract new sponsors, overhaul the club's youth set-up, introduce a close working relationship between Harlow's schools and the club, while attracting new fans and trying to push attendances beyond the 500 mark.

He said: "We are aiming for 500 minimum. That's the benchmark. We will have incentives for people to come back to watch the club."

The Hawks, promoted in 2007, are only two divisions below the Blue Square Premier but narrowly avoided relegation last term. However, Morgan believes the experience the club's young players picked up last season, plus the addition of three or four new players which player-boss Ryan Kirby has identified, will enable the club to enjoy better fortunes next time around.

NEW ERA: New Hawks vice-chairman Bill Wiseman, left, and chairman Simon Morgan plan to revitalise the club

"Whatever league we are in it is going to be a battle," said Morgan. "We had a tough season last season, but it was a great learning curve, especially for me."

"We can and will compete. Our aim is to stabilise early on. The youngsters will have key roles this year."

The Harlow-based businessman will team up with director Bill Wiseman, who is the club's new vice-chairman.

Morgan believes Wiseman's role will be crucial. "He has great experience. We have had a great relationship during my time at the club. We get on very well and have become close friends. Bill has great contacts. We will work together as a team," said Morgan.

"I will deal with the commercial side. These are difficult times. The club needs stability. We are looking for new people to come on board."

"The club must be run more like a business. People are feeling the pinch but we will stand up and be counted."

Jeff Bothwell will remain as chief executive, but Morgan and Wiseman will work in tandem with managing director Gary Lewis.

Lewis said: "I know that Simon will undertake a very much 'hands on' role and his energy and vision will help to ensure the club's continued success."

Runner receives call-up for All-England Championships

MARK Hunt has been selected to run the 400m at the All-England Schools Athletics Championships at Gateshead in July.

However, the former Passmore School pupil will this year represent Hertfordshire.

This is because the Harlow-based teenager now attends The Bishop's Stortford High School, where he is studying for his A-Levels. Mark, a member of Chelmsford Athletic Club, represented Essex last year.

He is expected to be joined in the Herts team by Harlow AC member Polly Woods, a pupil at Sawbridgeworth's Leventhorpe School. The youngster will compete in the triple jump.

In this event on Saturday, she registered a personal best leap of 10.84m at the Hertfordshire Schools Championships in Watford.
